REPORTS OF LIAISONS

CALIFORNIA DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION REPORT Breneman's complete report is in the CDE report on CATEWeb. Some highlights include: Jack O'Connell's High School Summit convened in October with over 3700 educators from across the state in attendance.

The HPHS will continue the work of high school improvement supported through Second to None: A Vision of the New California High School published in 1992 and Aiming High: High Schools for the 21st Century published in 2002. In addition, the HPHS Regional Support Network is being established to support high schools in their efforts to be High Performing High Schools. Though the full HPHS legislative package noted in the last update was not approved by the legislature, the Superintendent is moving ahead with the focus on high school improvement.

Five major focus areas for High Performing High Schools are as follows:

- 1) Implementing high expectations for all students

- 2) Developing world class teachers and school site administrators
- 3) Developing world class instructional materials
- 4) Supporting successful transitions to post secondary education
- 5) Nurturing and developing a community of support to foster high student achievement

Support for HPHS includes the following:

- 1) Aiming High: High Schools for the 21st Century, a how-to document for implementing a standards-based educational system
- 2) Aiming High Toolkit, a web document which introduces research-based resources for high school reform; offers how-to processes for instituting strategies that will increase student achievement; and provides tools, guides, and models to accompany Aiming High. Selected Aiming High Chapters and the Toolkit are available online at www.cde.ca.gov/ci/gs/hs/ahgen.asp
- 3) High Performing High Schools Regional Support Network. Implementation will be a joint effort of the California Department of Education, California County Superintendent's Educations Services Association, the California League of High Schools, and other stakeholder groups. The network structure will follow the 11 CCSEA regions. Funding will be provided by the California Department of Education through a contract with Stanislaus County Office of Education. The project will be initiated in December 2004. Network activities will include staff development activities, demonstration of promising practices, professional discussions on high school reform research, and dissemination of resources. For further information, contact John Merris-Coots at jmerris@cde.ca.gov or (916-319-0461).

Revision of Reading/Language Arts Framework The Curriculum Development and Supplemental Materials Commission (Curriculum Commission) has considered the following rationale for making only minor revisions to the 1999 R/LA Framework: The current framework is a high quality document that supports the current R/LA standards. Therefore, major changes should be unnecessary. The field is still in the process of implementing the 1999 framework, and it would create an unnecessary burden on students and educators to change or revise it significantly. At the September/October 2004 meeting the Curriculum Commission agreed that since the framework is viewed by many as a powerful document that provides clear direction for reading instruction in California, it would be most appropriate to update the research and make minor changes that would not compromise the bulk of the framework.

CDE has been in contact with faculty from the University of Oregon regarding some assistance for the research review during the update period. Tasks to be accomplished are as follows:

Review the current Reading/Language Arts Framework and identify those sections where current, confirmed recent research would be appropriate to include and cite. Amend "Works Cited" beginning on page 281 of the framework to reflect any new citations. Amend "Additional Resources" beginning on page 286 of the framework to add other important studies, books, or journal articles. Identify recent research studies relating to English language learners that show how English language learners learn to read. Provide a status report on the progress of work by February 2005. For further information please contact Martha Rowland at (mrowland@cde.ca.gov) or (916-319-0451).

Field Review A draft Reading Language Arts Framework for field review will be posted on the Web in April of 2005 to provide the field with the opportunity to provide feedback. The draft will include the entire framework, including updated elements and changes that are under consideration. The survey will contain components to assess the level of satisfaction with the existing document. All feedback that is received during the field review will be brought to the Reading/Language Arts Subject Matter Committee and to the full commission for its consideration. Revisions will be incorporated and CDE Press will review all edits and revisit the entire document for any editorial corrections that may be needed. It is projected that by November 2005 the revised criteria for the evaluation of instructional materials and the revised framework will go the State Board for approval.

Textbook Adoptions The follow-up adoptions that were suspended due to budget cuts in 2002-03 will occur in 2005. Based on a publisher's survey, it is expected that programs will be submitted for the following subjects:

- Mathematics, Grades 6-8
- Reading/Language Arts/English Language Development
- Foreign Language

Additional information on the reading/language arts follow-up adoption, including a schedule of significant events, can be found on the CDE Web site at:

<http://www.cde.ca.gov/ci/rl/im/>.

<http://www.cde.ca.gov/ci/cr/cf/lrdc.asp>.

Funding for Supplemental Instructional Materials for English Learners The 2004-05 State Budget included $30 million for supplemental instructional materials for English Learners, grades K-12. CDE is developing a correlation matrix for the English Language Development Standards and the English Language Arts Standards that publishers will use to demonstrate how their instructional materials align with these standards. Districts will determine which materials they wish to order and will submit to the CDE an intent to purchase by March 31, 2005. After CDE verification of the alignment of the materials proposed for purchase with these standards, the State Board will approve the distribution of the funds to the districts. For more information on this process go to the CDE Web site at:

<http://www.cde.ca.gov/ci/cr/cf/englearnrs.asp>.

Reading First - A total of 113 districts have now been approved for Reading First grants. This includes 38 new Round 3 districts. Changes in Reading First for 2004/05 include:

- The opportunity for districts to increase their grant funding to $8,000 per K-3 teacher upon approval of a plan to reduce the number of special education referrals based upon reading below grade level. Applications will be sent to all Reading First districts by September 15 and are due to CDE by October 15.
- A new provision that requires the State board to seek legislative approval for changes in the Reading First Program, including any extension of the grant period beyond three years.

Reading First Supplemental Intervention Materials List The State Approved Reading First Supplemental Intervention Program materials list will be posted at www.cde.ca.gov/pd/ca/rl/readfirst04.asp in early December 2004. These materials are intended for use as interventions to reduce the number of students being referred to Special Education.

For information regarding California's approved Reading First Plan, contact Debbie Rury (916-319-0651). For information about Reading First program implementation, contact Jeff Cohen (916-323-4629).

School Library News CDE Online School Library Survey. As recently announced in the Consolidated Application, part II, the school library survey is up and open.. Improvements include 1) immediate access to current year submissions which allows for printed copies; 2) access to information submitted in prior years; 3) minute-by-minute reports on which schools have participated.

Library Funding The Library Act funds for 2004-05 are part of the Consolidated Application. The same requirements apply, i.e. a district library plan and purchases made according to acceptable/unacceptable uses. The amount available is $4.2 million, half the amount originally anticipated.

Library-related Legislation AB 825 (originally SB 1510, Alpert) combines 26 categorical programs into six smaller block grant groups. Article 7 combines the School Improvement Program and the California Public School Library Act into one block grant called the School and Library Improvement Program. It goes into effect in 2005-06.

Standards and Guidelines for Strong School Libraries. New from the California School Library Association, Standards and Guidelines for Strong School Libraries provides, for the first time, both quantitative and qualitative standards for school libraries. Based on national standards and best practices, the document recommends a floor for minimum resources and instruction as well as successive levels of measurement for school libraries. The report points the way for California school libraries to contribute to student achievement and to prepare students for college, the workplace, and the habits of lifelong learning. For more information, see www.schoollibrary.org.

State Testing STAR Program resources, including the CST blueprints, released test questions, and guides for the writing applications component of the English-Language Arts CST, are available at www.cde.ca.gov/ta/tg/sr/resources.asp on the Internet. Approximately twenty-five percent of the questions from the 2004 California Standards Tests are being released and should be posted by the middle of December.

The Department continues to receive many questions from parents, teachers, and administrators about the writing test results for grades four and seven. There are no separate scale scores, performance levels, or passing scores for the writing component. The eighty-three point California English-Language Arts Standards Tests for grades four and seven include two components: a seventy-five question multiple-choice test and an eight-point writing assessment. Scale scores and performance levels are reported only for the total eighty-three point test. The writing test is one of six Reporting Clusters for the test.

For further information about state testing, contact Paul Michelson (916-319-0353) or Linda Lownes (916-319-036)

California High School Exit Exam (CAHSEE) Districts should receive CAHSEE study guides by early December and a copy is to be provided to each grade 10 student. The study guides were developed specifically for students. They take students through each of the standards assessed on the exam and use released test questions for student practice.

The CAHSEE office is also working on updating the CAHSEE Remediation Guide, and it should be posted on the Web site by early January. The Remediation Guide was developed for school staff to use to assist students who have failed the exam. It provides remediation strategies for school staff to use with these students.

The next SB 964 meeting is January 7. All of the SB 964 advisory panel meetings are open to the public. At a minimum, attendees will include WestEd project staff, CDE project staff, and the advisory panel members. Topics to be discussed at the next meeting are: 1) overview of accessibility of academic content standards for students with disabilities; 2) follow up research on alternative assessments; and 3) discussion of alternative graduation requirements and diploma options

For further information visit <http://www.cde.ca.gov/ta/tg/hs/notes1104.asp> for the November CAHSEE update.

Early Assessment Program, California State University. The Early Assessment Program (EAP) offers high school students the opportunity to determine their readiness for college-level work in English and mathematics before entering the California State University (CSU). EAP is a voluntary assessment administered in conjunction with the California Standards Test (CST) in 11th grade in English-language arts and mathematics. The English language arts (ELA) augmentation consists of 15 multiple-choice questions developed by CSU faculty and an essay. CSU English faculty members score the essays. The students' scores are based on ELA CST questions selected by CSU faculty, the 15 CSU questions, and the essay. Based on the results of the testing, students are designated as exempt or non-exempt from placement testing and from remedial courses in English and/or math in their first year at CSU. The test results are not used as part of the CSU admission process.

To support those students who need to strengthen their academic literacy before entering the university, the CSU established a Task Force to develop a 12th Grade Expository Reading and Writing Course. Task Force members are CSU faculty from English, reading, and ESL and teachers and administrators from high schools and school districts. The Task Force has developed a course that is aligned with the English-Language Arts Content Standards and that emphasizes the in-depth study of expository, analytical, and argumentative writing. Five course modules are currently available for piloting in 2004-2005. The full course will be available for adoption as a senior English course for 2005-2006.

Workshops are currently being conducted to train senior English teachers to pilot the five course modules. The workshops are sponsored by county offices of education and facilitated by two-member teams including one CSU faculty member and one high school teacher, county office consultant, or school district administrator. Interested administrators and high school English teachers should contact their local county office language arts coordinator for more information. They may also contact Nancy Brynelson, Co-Director, California State University, Center for the Advancement of Reading, at nbrynelson@calstate.edu.
